

I would like to express myself as a person who looks up for something new everytime let it be tech or something around me. Exploring new tech, reading article and listening to musical instruments have fascinated me back from my childhood.

I see today myself ~~as~~ as a good technical person & team player have good managing & leading skills. I have mainly worked in Machine learning and Android development domain ~~to~~ right from my first year. And also right now leading Android development domain of TRF. I might not know many things of all domains but I can confidently say I have perfect hands-on on the domain I have explored.

Apart from technical perspective, I am lazy person who always needs a hammer ~~to~~ on my head to push my self to do things better also I'm bit less confident in explaining myself and sometimes even fumbles when talking to other.
